This Production..

Some time ago Carolyn and I went to Lenham to see some plays written by Glenn Bryan (some of you may remember him as the toothy curate in 'Habeus Corpus') They were rather good and we thought we would like to put them on at Charing - so now we are!. The plays are from a series called 'Happy Endings' which is about different people getting into difficult situations and not always understanding what is going on around them, but who manage to sort themselves out in the end.

'Anythink With a K' centres round the marriage of 2 young people who are happy with each other but whose families are very aware of their different social standing. The wedding day produces a few sticky moments, but all survive the experience.

'An Elephant in the Room' is a monologue about a man coming to terms with his lonely situation after his wife has left him.

In 'There's a bit of sky missing' a couple with a fragile relationship finally manage to put all the pieces together and see the whole picture.

About the Author

Glenn Bryan lives in Hollingbourne with his wife, Lynn, two cats, one dog, a horse and a donkey. Usually coming seventh in the pecking order. After a distinguished career in what was once described as 'travelling in sausages' Glenn now concentrates on building a Hadron Collider out of beer mats in the spare room and filing his socks alphabetically. He writes plays, Pantomimes and Murder Mysteries when the fancy takes him and is always looking for the perfect way to turn a crisis into a drama.
